[It lay on the south of Kauśikī Kachchha and on the right bank of the Ganges. Its capital was Champa, sometimes called Angapuri, Lomapādapuri, Karṇapurī or Mālīni. According to Daṇḍin (aṅgeṣu gaṁgātate bahiścampāyāḥ) and Hiouen Thsang it stood on the Ganges about 24 miles west of a rocky island. General Cunningham has shown that this description applies to the hill opposite Patharghata, that it is 24 miles east of Bhagalpur, and that there are villages called Champanagar and Champapura adjoining the last. According to Sanskrit poets the country of the Angas lay to the east of Girivraja the capital of Magadha and to the north-east or south-east of Mithila. The country was in ancient times ruled by Karṇa.] --a.

क - ka

ka the first consonant of the alphabet, and the first guttural letter (corresponding in sound to 'k' in 'keep' or 'king').

ka "kas, kā, kim", interrog. pron. (see "kim" and 2. "kad", and cf. the following words in which the interrogative base "ka" appears, "katama, katara, kati, katham, kadā, karhi, kā", &c.), who? which? what? In its declension "ka" follows the pronoun "tad" except in nom. acc. sing. neut., where "kim" has taken the place of "kad" or "kat" in classical Sanskrit; but the old form "kad" is found in the Veda (see Gram. 227); ([cf. Zd. 'ka', 'ko', 'kA', 'kat'; Gk. [greek]; Lat. 'quis', 'quid'; Lith. 'kas' "ka"; Goth. 'hvas', 'hvo', 'hva', Angl. Sax. 'hwa', 'hwaet'; Eng. 'who', 'what'.]) The interrogative sentence introduced by "ka" is often terminated by "iti" (e.g. "kasya sa putra iti kathyatām", let it be said, "whose son is he?"), but "iti" may be omitted and the sentence lose its direct interrogative character (e.g. "kasya sa putro na jñāyate", it is not known whose son he is). "ka" with or without 1. "as" may express "how is it possible that?" "what power have I, you, they, &c.?" (e.g. "ke mama dhanvino'nye", what can the other archers do against me? "ke āvām paritrātum", what power have we to rescue you?) "ka" is often connected with a demonstrative pron. (e.g. "ko 'yam āyāti", who comes here?) or with the potential (e.g. "ko hariṁ nindet", who will blame Hari?) "ka" is sometimes repeated (e.g. "kaḥ ko 'tra", who is there? "kān kān", whom? whom? i.e. which of them? cf. Gram. 54), and the repetition is often due to a kind of attraction (e.g. "keṣāṁ kiṁ śāstram adhyayanīyam", which book is to be read by whom? Gram. 836. "a"). When "kim" is connected with the inst. c. of a noun or with the indecl. participle it may express "what is gained by doing so, &c.?" (= "ko'rthas"); (e.g. "kiṁ vilambena", what is gained by delay? "kim bahunā", what is the use of more words? "dhanena kiṁ yo na dadāti", what is the use of wealth to him who does not give? with inst. and gen., "nīrujaḥ kim auṣadhaiḥ", what is the use of medicine to the healthy?) "ka" is often followed by the particles "iva, u, nāma, nu, vā, svid", some of which serve merely to generalize the interrogation (e.g. "kim iva etad", what can this be? "ka u śravat", who can possibly hear? "ko nāma jñāti", who indeed knows? "ko nv ayam", who, pray, is this? "kim nu kāryam", what is to be done? "ko vā devād anyah", who possibly other than a god? "kasya svid hṛdayaṁ nāsti", of what person is there no heart?) "ka" is occasionally used alone as an indefinite pronoun, especially in negative sentences (e.g. "na kasya ko vallabhaḥ", no one is a favourite of any one; "nānyo jñāti kaḥ", no one else knows; "kathaṁ sa ghātayati kam", how does he kill any one?) Generally, however, "ka" is only made indefinite when connected with the particles "ca, cana, cid, vā", and "api", in which case "ka" may sometimes be preceded by the relative "ya" (e.g. "ye ke ca", any persons whatsoever; "yasyai kasyai ca devatāyai", to any deity whatsoever; "yāni kāni ca mitrāṇi", any friends whatsoever; "yat kimca", whatever). The particle "cana", being composed of "ca" and "na", properly gives a negative force to the pronoun (e.g. "yasmād indrād ṛte kimcana", without which Indra there is nothing), but the negative sense is generally dropped (e.g. "kaścana", any one; "na kaścana", no one), and a relative is sometimes connected with it (e.g. "yat kimcana", anything whatsoever). Examples of "cid" with the interrogative are common; "vā" and "api" are not so common, but the latter is often found in classical Sanskrit (e.g. "kaścid", any one; "kecid", some; "na kaścid", no one; "na kimcid api", nothing whatsoever; "yaḥ kaścid", any one whatsoever; "kecit" - "kecit", some - others; "yasmin kasmin vā deśe", in any country whatsoever; "na ko 'pi", no one; "na kimapi", nothing whatever). "ka" may sometimes be used, like 2. "kad", at the beginning of a compound. see "ka-pūya", &c.

ka a Taddhita affix (much used in forming adjectives; it may also be added to nouns to express diminution, deterioration, or similarity e.g.

"putraka", a little son; "aśvaka", a bad horse or like a horse).

Apte, Vaman Shivaram: The Practical Sanskrit-English Dictionary.
Poona :

1890

ka The first consonant of the alphabet, and first letter of the guttural class.

ka A Taddhita affix added to nouns and adjectives, mostly to the former, in the sense of diminution, deterioration, similarity, endearment, or sometimes to express the original meaning of the word itself; e. g. vṛkṣakaḥ a small tree; bālakaḥ a chap; putrakaḥ dear boy; aśvakaḥ a bad horse, or like a horse, or a horse itself (svārthe kaḥ).

ka This letter has the following meanings:

ka ĀDA. A famous sage of ancient India. He was the founder of the Vaiśeṣika system. The word means one who eats Kaṇa (atom). His foes gave him this name to ridicule him. He is also called Kaṇabhakṣaka. Kaṇāda is known as Pippalāda also. (He got that name because he used to eat Pippalī (long pepper) in large quantities). (See under PIPPALĀDA).

ka [1] stem of the interr. pron. (n. kad older than kim q.v.) who, what, which? Used as subst. or adj. in direct & indirect questions, often connected w. iva u nāma nu vā svid, also w. a demonstr. pron., e.g. ko 'yamāyāti who comes here? kimidaṁ kuruṣe what are you doing there? Used also as indef. pron. = some, any, whoever, whatever, whichever, esp. after ya & mā, before ca cana cid, & (later) api; kaśca kaścana, etc. w. neg. = nobody, none, n. nothing. kaścit-kaścit the one--the other; pl. some-others.

ka [2] m. the god Who (E. of Prajāpati, Brahman, etc.); n. joy, water, head.

Macdonell, Arthur Anthony: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. London :

ka 1. ka, inter. prn. st. (n. V. kad; C. kim) who? what? which? with iva, u, nāma, who indeed? often used in a depreciating sense = as good as none, no one or nothing: kā+eṣa kathā? that is out of the question; kim with in. or gd. = what does -- matter? what is the use of -- to (g.)? with nu, who pray? with vā, who possibly? with svid, who or what, I wonder? Indef. prn. 1. with neg. any, one; 2. with preceding ya and following ca, whosoever, whichever; anysoever, every; with preceding ya and following vā, anysoever; 3. with cana, none whatever (often strengthened by negatives); 4. with cana, cid, or api, some, any, a certain (a. or N.): pl. some; kaścid-kaścid, the one -- the other: pl. some -- others.

ka 2. ka, m. (Who?) ep. of Prajāpati or Brahman; n. bliss; water; head.

कतम - katama

Monier-Williams, Monier: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. London : 1899

katama mfn ("-at"). (superlative of 2. "ka"; declined as a pronom., Gram. 236), who or which of many? (e.g. "katamena pathā yātās te", by which road have they gone?)

mfn ("-at"). it is often a mere strengthened substitute for "ka", the superlative affix imparting emphasis mfn ("-at"). hence it may occasionally be used for "who or which of two?" (e.g. "tayoḥ katamasmai", to which of these two?)

mfn ("-at"). it may optionally be compounded with the word to which it refers (e.g. "katamaḥ kaṭhaḥ", or "katama-kaṭhaḥ", which Kaṭha out of many?)

mfn ("-at"). when followed by "ca" and preceded "yatama" an indefinite expression is formed equivalent to "any whosoever", "any whatsoever", &c. (e.g. "yatamad eva katamac ca vidyāt" he may know anything whatsoever). In negative sentences "katama" with "cana" or "katama" with "api" = not even one, none at all (e.g. "na katamaccanāhaḥ", not even on a single day, on no day at all)

mfn ("-at"). in addition to the above uses "katama" is said to mean "best", "excessively good-looking" (cf. 3. "ka")

कति - kati

kati (fr. 2. "ka" declined in pl. only, Gram. 227 "a"; all the cases except the nom. voc. and acc. taking terminations, whereas the correlative "iti" has become fixed as an indeclinable adverb), how many? 'quot'? several (e.g. "kati devāḥ", how many gods? "kati vyāpādayati kati vā tāḍayati", some he kills and some he strikes). In the sense of "several", "some", "kati" is generally followed by "cid" or "api" (e.g. "katicid ahāni", for several or some days); it may be used as an adverb with "cid" in the sense of "oftentimes", "much", "in many ways" (e.g. "katicit stutaḥ", much or often praised) ([cf. Zd. 'caiti'; Gk. [greek]; Lat. 'quot'; cf. Sk. "tati" and Lat. 'tot'.]) kati (for 1. see above) m. N. of a sage (son of Viśvā-mitra and ancestor of Kātyāyana)

कर्तृ - kartr

kartṛ mfn. one who makes or does or acts or effects, a doer, maker, agent, author (with gen. or acc. or ifc. cf. "bhaya-kartṛ", &c.) &c. &c.
mfn. doing any particular action or business, applying one's self to any occupation (the business or occupation preceding in the compound cf.
"suvarṇa-kartṛ, rājya-k-", &c.)
mfn. one who acts in a religious ceremony, a priest &c.
kartṛ m. the creator of the world

mfn. N. of Viṣṇu

mfn. of Brahman

mfn. of śiva

karṭṛ mfn. (in Gr.) the agent of an action (who acts of his own accord ["sva-tantra"]), the active noun, the subject of a sentence (it stands either in the nom. [in active construction], or in the instr. [in passive construction], or in the gen. [in connection with a noun of action]; it is opposed to "karman", the object) &c.

mfn. one who is about to do, one who will do (used as periphr. fut.)

Apte, Vaman Shivaram: The Practical Sanskrit-English Dictionary. Poona :

1890

कर्मन् - karman

Monier-Williams, Monier: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. London : 1899

karman n. ("ā" m. , ("kr" , act, action, performance, business &c.
n. office, special duty, occupation, obligation (frequently ifc., the first member of the compound being either the person who performs the action [e.g. "vaṇik-k-"] or the person or thing for or towards whom the action is performed [e.g. "rāja-k-, paśu-k-"] or a specification of the action [e.g. "śaurya-k-, prīti-k-"]) &c.
n. any religious act or rite (as sacrifice, oblation &c., esp. as originating in the hope of future recompense and as opposed to speculative religion or knowledge of spirit) &c.
n. work, labour, activity (as opposed to rest, "praśānti") &c.
n. physicking, medical attendance
n. action consisting in motion (as the third among the seven categories of the Nyāya philosophy; of these motions there are five, viz.

"ut-kṣepaṇa, ava-kṣepaṇa, ā-kuṇcana, prasāraṇa", and "gamana", qq.

vv.)

n. calculation

n. product, result, effect

n. organ of sense xiv (or of action see "karmendriya")

karman n. (in Gr.) the object (it stands either in the acc. [in active construction], or in the nom. [in passive construction], or in the gen. [in connection with a noun of action]; opposed to "kartṛ" the subject)

"nirvartya", when anything new is produced e.g. "kaṭaṁ karoti", "e makes a mat"; "putraṁ prasūte", "she bears a son"; b. "vikārya", when change is implied either of the substance and form e.g. "kāṣṭhaṁ bhasma karoti", "e reduces fuel to ashes"; or of the form only e.g. "suvarṇaṁ kuṇḍalaṁ karoti", "e fashions gold into an ear-ring"; c. "prāpya", when any desired object is attained e.g. "grāmaṁ gacchati", "e goes to the village"; "candraṁ paśyati", "e sees the moon"; d. "anīpsita", when an undesired object is abandoned e.g. "pāpaṁ tyajati", "e leaves the wicked")

n. former act as leading to inevitable results, fate (as the certain consequence of acts in a previous life) , (cf. "karma-pāka" and "-vipāka")

n. the tenth lunar mansion

कारक - kāraka

Monier-Williams, Monier: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. London : 1899

kāraka mf ("ikā") n. (generally ifc.) making, doing, acting, who or what does or produces or creates &c. (cf. "śimha-k-, kṛtsna-k-, śilpa-k")

mf ("ikā") n. intending to act or do kāraka n. "instrumental in bringing about the action denoted by a verb (= "kriyā-hetu" or "-nimitta")", the notion of a case (but not co-extensive with the term case; there are six such relations accord. to "karman, karaṇa, kartṛ, sampradāna, apādāna, adhikaraṇa", qq. vv. The idea of the genitive case is not considered a "kāraka", because it ordinarily expresses the relation of two nouns to each other, but not the relation of a noun and verb).

kāraka n. hail-water

kāraka mf ("ikā") n. panting, gasping

Apte, Vaman Shivaram: The Practical Sanskrit-English Dictionary. Poona :

kāraka a. (rikā f.) [kṛ-ṇvul] (Usually at the end of comp.)

(1) Making, acting, doing, performing, creating, doer &c.; svapnasya kārakaḥ Y. 3. 150; 2. 156; varṇasamkarakāraḥ Bg. 1. 42; Ms. 7. 204;

Pt. 5. 36.

(2) An agent.

(3) Intending to act or do. --kaṁ

(1) (In gram.) The relation subsisting between a noun and a verb in a sentence, (or between a noun and other words governing it); there are six such Kāraḥ, belonging to the first seven cases, except the genitive:

(1) kartṛ;

(2) karman;

(3); karaṇa;

(4) saṁpradāna;

(5) apādāna;

(6) adhikaraṇa.

(2) That part of grammar which treats of these relations; i. e. syntax.

(3) Water produced from hail.

-- Comp.

--dīpakam (in Rhet.) a figure of speech in which the same Kāraka is connected with several verbs in succession; e. g. khidyati kūṇati vellati vicalati nimiṣati vilokayati tiryak . aṁtarnaṁdati cumbitumicchati navapariṇayā vadhūḥ śayane .. K. P. 10.

--hetuḥ the active or efficient cause (opp. jñāpakahetu).

गुणः - gunah

Apte, Vaman Shivaram: The Practical Sanskrit-English Dictionary. Poona :

1890

guṇaḥ [guṇ-ac]

(1) A quality(good or bad); suguṇa, durguṇa.

(2)

1; vasanti hi premṇi guṇā na vastuni Ki. 8. 37; R. 1. 9, 22; sādhutve tasya ko guṇaḥ Pt. 4. 108.

(b) Eminence.

(3) Use, advantage, good (with instr. usually); Pt. 5.; kaḥ sthānalābhe guṇaḥ 2. 20; H. 1. 52; Mu. 1. 15.

(4) Effect, result, efficacy, good result; sambhāvanāguṇamavehi tamīśvarāṇām S. 7. 4; guṇamahatām mahate guṇāya yogaḥ Ki. 10. 25, 6.

7.

(a) A single thread or string.

(b) Thread, string, rope, cord; mekhalāguṇaiḥ Ku. 4. 8; 5. 10;

trṇairguṇatvaptāpannairbadhyamte mattadamītinah H. 1. 35; yataḥ pareṣām guṇagrahītāsi Bv. 1. 9 (where guṇa also means 'a merit').

(6) The bow-string; guṇakṛtye dhanuṣo niyojitā Ku. 4. 15, 29;

kanakapīṅgataḍidguṇasamīyutam R. 9. 54.

(7) The string of a musical instrument; Śi. 4. 57.

(8) A sinew.

(9) A quality, attribute, property in general; Ms. 9. 22. (10) A quality, characteristic or property of all substances, one of the seven categories or padarthas of the Vaiśeṣikas, (the number of these properties is 24).

(11) An ingredient or constituent of nature, any one of the three properties belonging to all created things; (these are sattva, rajas, and tamas); guṇatrayavibhāgāya Ku. 2. 4; Bg. 14. 5; R. 3. 27.

(12) A wick, cotton thread; Pt. 1. 221.

(13) An object of sense; (these are five rūpa, rasa, gaṇḍha, sparśa, and śabda).

(14) Repetition, multiplication, denoting 'folds' or 'times', usually at the end of comp. after numerals; āhāro dviguṇaḥ strīṇām buddhistāsām caturguṇā . ṣaḍguṇo vyavasāyaśca kāmāścāṣṭaguṇaḥ smṛtaḥ .. Chaṇ. 78; so triguṇa; śataguṇībhavati becomes a hundred-fold.

(15) A secondary element, a subordinate part (opp. mukhya).

(16) Excess, abundance, superfluity.

(17) An adjective, a word subordinate to another in a sentence.

(18) The substitution of e, o, ar and al for i, u, ṛ (short or long) and l, or the vowels a, e, o, and ar and al.

(19) (In Rhet.) Quality considered as an inherent property of a Rasa or sentiment. Mammaṭa thus defines guṇa. --ye rasasyāṅgino dharmāḥ śauryādaya ivātmanaḥ . utkarṣahetavaste syuracalasthitayo guṇāḥ .. K. P. 8. (Some writers on rhetoric, such as Vāmana, Jagannātha Paṇḍita, Daṇḍin and others, consider Gunas to be properties both of śabda and artha, and mention ten varieties under each head. Mammaṭa, however, recognises only three, and, after discussing and criticizing the views of others, says: mādhyaujaḥprasādākhyāstrayaste na punardaśa K. P. 8).

(20) (In gram. and Mīm.) Property considered as the meaning of a class of words; e. g. grammarians recognise four kinds of the meaning of words; jāti, guṇa, kriyā and dravya, and give gauḥ, śuklaḥ, calaḥ and dīptaḥ as instances to illustrate these meanings.

(21) (In politics) A proper course of action, an expedient. (The expedients to be used by a king in foreign politics are six: --1 saṁdhi peace or alliance; 2 vighraha war; 3 yāna march or expedition; 4 sthāna or āsana halt; 5 saṁśraya seeking shelter; 6 dvaidha or dvaidhībhāva duplicity; saṁdhirnā vighraho yānamāsanam dvaidhamāśrayaḥ Ak.) see Y. 1. 346; Ms. 7. 160; Śi. 2. 26; R. 8. 21.

(22) The number 'three' (derived from the three qualities).

(23) The chord of an arc (in geom.).

(24) An organ of sense.

(25) A subordinate dish; Ms. 3. 226, 233.

(26) A cook.

(27) An epithet of Bhīma; as in yudhiṣṭhiropi guṇapriyaḥ Vas.

(28) Leaving, abandonment.

(29) A multiplier, co-efficient (in arith.). (30) Division, subdivision, species, kind.

(31) The peculiar property of letters which are pronounced with external utterance (bāhyaprayatna); they are eleven.

(--naḥ) the eldest of the 101 sons of Dhṛtarāṣṭra and Gāndhārī [From his early years he conceived a deep hatred for his cousins the Pāṇḍavas, but particularly Bhīma, and made every effort he could to compass their destruction. When his father proposed to make Yudhiṣṭhira heirapparent, Duryodhana did not like the idea, as his father was the reigning sovereign, and prevailed upon his blind father to send the Pāṇḍavas away into exile.

Vāraṇavata was fixed upon as their abode, and under pretext of constructing a palatial building for their residence, Duryodhana caused a palace to be built mostly of lac, resin and other combustible materials, thereby hoping to see them all destroyed when they should enter it. But the Pāṇḍavas were forewarned and they safely escaped. They then lived at Indraprastha, and Yudhiṣṭhira performed the Rājasūya sacrifice with great pomp and splendour. This event further excited the anger and jealousy of Duryodhana who was already vexed to find that his plot for burning them up had signally failed, and he induced his father to invite the Pāṇḍavas to Hastināpura to play with dice (of which Yudhiṣṭhira was particularly fond). In that gambling-match, Duryodhana, who was ably assisted by his maternal uncle Śakuni, won from Yudhiṣṭhira everything that he staked, till the infatuated gambler staked himself, his brothers, and Draupadī herself, all of whom shared the same fate. Yudhiṣṭhira, as a condition of the wager, was forced to go to the forest with his wife and brothers, and to remain there for twelve years and to pass one additional year incognito. But even this period, long as it was, expired, and after their return from exile both the Pāṇḍavas and Kauravas made great preparations for the inevitable struggle and the great Bhārātī war commenced. It lasted for eighteen days during which all the Kauravas, with most of their allies, were slain. It was on the last day of the war that Bhīma fought a duel with Duryodhana and smashed his thigh with his club.]. --yoni a. of a low birth. --lakṣya a. difficult to be seen or perceived, hardly visible. --labha a. 1. difficult to be attained, or accomplished; R. 1. 67, 17. 70; Ku. 4. 40, 5. 46, 61. --2. difficult to be found or met with, scarce, rare; śuddhāntadurlabham S. 1. 16. --3. best, excellent, eminent. --4. dear, beloved. --5. costly. --lalita a. 1. spoilt by fondling, fondled too

Although the people of India always believed in the greatness of the Vedas, the Vedas became unintelligible even to scholars owing to changes in language and differences in grammar. It was Yāska and Sāyaṇa who saved the country from that plight. Yāska became famous by composing "Nirukta" (etymology). There is a reference to this ancient sage in Mahābhārata, Chapter 342, Verse 72. Cappeller, Carl: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary, based upon the St. Petersburg Lexicons. Strassburg : 1891 yāska m. लोप - lopa	Monier-Williams, Monier: A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. London : 1899 lopa m. breaking, hurting, injury, destruction, interruption &c.

m. neglect, violation, transgression (of a vow or duty) &c.

m. robbing, plundering

m. want, deficiency, absence, disappearance

lopa m. (in gram.) dropping, elision (generally as distinguished from the terms "lup, ślu, luk", which are only applicable to affixes; when "lopa" of an affix takes place, a blank is substituted, which exerts the same influence on the base as the affix itself, but when either "luk" or "lup" or "ślu" of an affix is enjoined, then the affix is not only dropped but it is also inoperative on the base; thus in the 1st pl. of "kati", where "jas" is said to be elided by "luk", the change of the final of the base to Guṇa does not take place i.e. both the affix and its effect on the base are abolished; moreover, "lopa" refers only to the last letter of an affix, whereas by "luk" &c. the dropping of the whole affix is implied) &c.

vā ind. or (excluded, like the Lat. 've', from the first place in a sentence, and generally immediately following, rarely and only m.c. preceding, the word to which it refers) &c. &c. (often used in disjunctive sentences; "vā-vā", "either" -- "or", "on the one side" -- "on the other"; "na vā" -- "vā" or "na" -- "vā", "neither" -- "nor"; "vā na-vā", "either not" -- "or"; "yadi vā-vā", "whether" -- "or"; in a sentence containing more than two members "vā" is nearly always repeated, although if a negative is in the first clause it need not be so repeated; "vā" is sometimes interchangeable with "ca" and "api", and is frequently combined with other particles, esp. with "atha, atho, uta, kim, yad, yadi" q.v. [e.g. "atha vā", "or else"]; it is also sometimes used as an expletive); either-or not, optionally &c. (in gram. "vā" is used in a rule to denote its being optional e.g. ; as, like (= "iva") &c.; just, even, indeed, very (= "eva", laying stress on the preceding word) ; but even if, even supposing (followed by a future) ; however, nevertheless ; (after a rel. or interr.) possibly, perhaps, I dare say &c. (e.g. "kiṃ vā śakuntalety asya mātūr ākhyā", "is his mother's name perhaps śakuntalā?" ; "ko vā" or "ke vā" followed by a negative may in such cases be translated by "every one, all" e.g. "ke vā na syuḥ paribhava-padaṃ niṣphalāram-bha-yatnāḥ", "everybody whose efforts are fruitless is an object of contempt" vā cl.2.P. (xxiv, 42) "vāti" (pf. "vavau" &c.; aor. "avāsīt" ; fut. "vāsyati" ; inf. "vātum" , to blow (as the wind) &c. &c.; to procure or bestow anything (acc.) by blowing ; to blow towards or upon (acc.) ; to emit an odour, be diffused (as perfume) ; to smell (trans.) (v.l.); to hurt, injure Caus. "vāpayati" see "nir-vā" and cf. "vājaya": Desid. "vivāsati" see 1. "van". ([Cf. Gk. [greek] for [characters]; Lat. 'ventus'; Slav. 'vejati'; Goth. 'waian', 'winds'; Germ. 'wajan', 'woejen', 'wehen', 'Wind'; Angl. Sax. 'wawan'; Eng. 'wind'.]) vā ind.

(1) As an alternative conjunction it means 'or'; but its position is different in Sanskrit, being used either with each word or assertion or only with the last, but it is never used at the beginning of a clause; cf. ca.

(2) It has also the following senses:

(a) and, as well as, also; vāyurvā dahano vā G. M.; asti te mātā smarasi vā tātām U. 4.

(b) like, as; jātām manye tuhinamathitām padminiṁ vānyarūpām Me. 83; maṇi voṣṭrasya lambete Sk.; hr̥ṣṭo garjati cātidarpitabalo durvodhano vā śikhī Mk. 5. 6; snānīyavastrakriyayā patroṇām vopayujyate M. 5. 12; Śi. 3. 63, 4. 35, 7. 64; Ki. 3. 13.

(c) optionally; (in this sense mostly in grammatical rules, as of Pāṇini); doṣo ṇau vā cittavirāge P. VI. 4. 99. 91.

(d) Possibility; (in this sense vā is usually added to the interrogative pronoun and its derivatives like iva or nāma), and may be translated by 'possibly', 'I should like to know'; kasya vānyasya vacasi mayā sthātavyam K.; parivartini saṁsāre mṛtaḥ ko vā na jāyate Pt. 1. 27.

(e) Sometimes used merely as an expletive.

(f) Indeed, truly.

(g) Only.

(3) When repeated vā has the sense of 'either-or', 'whether-or'; sā vā śāmbhostadīyā vā mūrtirjalamayī mama Ku. 2. 60; tatra pariśramānurodhādvā uttāmakathāvastugauravādvā visarjanīya "vi-sarjanīya" m. (cf. "vi-sarga" above) N. of a symbol in grammar (usually marked by two perpendicular dots [:] representing a hard and distinctly audible aspiration; it generally, but not always, occurs at the end of a word, often taking the place of final "s" and "r"; it is called Visarjanīya either from its liability to be "rejected" or from its being pronounced with a full "emission" of breath, or from its usually appearing at the "end" of a word or sentence; Paṇḍits in some parts of India seem to pronounce a vowel after it, e.g. "naraḥ" like "naraha, agniḥ" like "agnihi")

śakti 1 I

śakti 2 II The weapon of Subrahmaṇya is called Śakti, and it was made by Viśvakarman. Viśvakarman once grilled Sūrya (sun) on his machine and reduced his glow. The glow thus released by Viśvakarman fell on the earth and Viśvakarman made with that glow the cakra (disc) of Viṣṇu, the trisūla (trident) of Siva the Puṣpaka, aerial chariot of Kubera and the Śakti of Subrahmaṇya. (Viṣṇu Purāṇa, Part 3, Chapter 2).

śakti 3 III The sound 'Ś' means welfare or prosperity and 'kti' prowess. Therefore Śakti means she, who is the embodiment of prosperity and prowess or she, who grants prosperity and prowess. The definition of 'Bhagavatī' is, she who combines in herself knowledge affluence, wealth, reputation, power and the female organ. Therefore the word 'Śakti' may be taken to mean Bhagavatī and Pārvatī, and what are termed as Bhagavatī, Śakti, Devī, Ambikā, Pārvatī etc. are the manifestations of Śakti, Śiva's spouse. This Śakti exists fractionally in all Devas. When, once upon a time the devāsura war broke out the Śaktis of Devas like Brahmā emerged to help Caṇḍikā. The vehicle, ornaments, weapon etc. of each Deva, his Devī also possessed. The Śaktis (Devīs) of the Devas appeared in the following manner. Brahmānī, wife of Brahmā, rode on the swan wearing beads around her neck and holding the water-vessel in her hands. She was followed by Vaiṣṇavī Viṣṇu's Śakti on Garuḍa wearing yellow clothes and with the conch, disc, lotus etc. in her hands. Śāṅkarī Śiva's Śakti rode on the ox with the crescent moon and serpents as ornaments and holding in her hands the Sūla. 'Kaumārī', Subrahmaṇya's Śakti rode on Airāvata with sūla in hands. The Śakti called 'Vārāhī' in the form of a great boar rode carrying a corpse, Nārasimhī Śakti took the form of narasimha (half man and half lion). Yāmyā, Yama's śakti, rode on buffalo holding in her hands a long stick. Śaktis called Kauberī and Vāruṇī took their respective forms and in this manner all the Śaktis came to the help of Devī. This sight pleased not only the Devas, but the mother of the universe also. Along with them incarnated on earth Śaṁkara, who gives 'śaṁ' (happiness) to the world and blessed Caṇḍikā on the battle-field (Devī Bhāgavata, 5th and 9th Skandhas).

Resolved to carry out her purpose, she created, by means of her superhuman power, a woman exactly like herself who was, as it were, her own shadow (and was therefore called Chhāyā), --and putting her in her own place, went away without the knowledge of the sun. Chhāyā bore to the sun three children (see chāyā), and lived quite happily with him, so that when Saṁjñā returned, he would not admit her. Thus repudiated and disappointed, she assumed the form of a mare and roamed over the earth. The sun, however, in course of time, came to know the real state of things, and discovered that his wife had assumed the form of a mare. He accordingly assumed the form of a horse, and was united with his wife, who bore to him two sons the Ásvinīkumār as or Ásvins q. v.].

saṁhitā "saṁ-hitā" f. see next saṁhitā "saṁ-hitā" f. conjunction, connection, union

saṁhitā "saṁ-hitā" f. (in gram.) the junction or combination of letters according to euphonic rules (= "saṁdhi", but sometimes considered rather as the state preparatory to the actual junction than the junction itself)

f. a text treated according to euphonic rules (esp. the real continuous text of the Vedas as formed out of the Padas or separate words by proper phonetic changes [according to various schools; cf. 152]: beside the Saṁhitās of the ṛig-, Sāma-, and Atharvaveda there is the Vājasaneyi-Saṁhitā belonging to the White Yajur-veda, and five other Saṁhitās belonging to the black Yajur-veda, viz. the Taittirīya-Saṁhitā, the Saṁhita of the ātreya [known only by its Anukramaṇī], the Saṁhitā of the Kaṭhas, the Kapiṣṭhala-Kaṭha-Saṁhitā, and the Saṁhitā of the Maitrāyaṇīyas or Maitrāyaṇī-Saṁhitā) &c.

f. any methodically arranged collection of texts or verses (e.g. the Rāmāyaṇa, the various law-books, the medical works of Caraka and śārṅgadhara, the complete system of natural astrology &c. [cf. "bṛhat-s-"]; there is also a Saṁhitā of the Purāṇas said to have been compiled by Vyāsa, the substance of which is supposed to be represented by the Viṣṇu-purāṇa) &c.

f. science

f. the force which holds together and supports the universe (a term applied to the Supreme Being accord. to some)

f. N. of various wks.

mf. relating to number (in gram as expressed by the case-terminations &c.)

mf. rational, or discriminative

sāṃkhya m. one who calculates or discriminates well, (esp.) an adherent of the Sāṃkhya doctrine &c.

sāṃkhya m. N. of a man

sāṃkhya patr. of the Vedic ṛṣi Atri

mf. N. of śiva

sāṃkhya n. (accord. to some also m.) N. of one of the three great divisions of Hindū philosophy (ascribed to the sage Kapila [q.v.], and so called either from "discriminating", in general, or, more probably, from "reckoning up" or "enumerating" twenty-five Tattvas [see "tattva"] or true entities [twenty-three of which are evolved out of Prakṛiti "the primordial Essence" or "first-Producer"], viz. Buddhi, Ahaṃkāra, the five Tan-mātras, the five Mahā-bhūtas and Manas; the twenty-fifth being Purusha or Spirit [sometimes called Soul] which is neither a Producer nor Production [see "vikāra"], but wholly distinct from the twenty-four other and is multitudinous, each separate Purusha by its union with Prakṛiti causing a separate creation out of Prakṛiti, the object of the philosophy being to effect the final liberation of the Purusha or Spirit from the fetters caused by that creation; the Yoga [q.v.] branch of the Sāṃkhya recognizes a Supreme Spirit dominating each separate Purusha; the Tantras identify Prakṛiti with the wives of the gods, esp. with the wife of śiva; the oldest systematic exposition of the Sāṃkhya seems to have been by an author called Pañca-śikha [the germ, however, being found in the ṣaṣṭi-tantra, of which only scanty fragments are extant]; the original Sūtras were superseded by the Sāṃkhya-kārikā of īśvara-kṛiṣṇa, the oldest manual on the Sāṃkhya system that has come down to us and probably written in the 5th century A.D., while the Sāṃkhya-sūtras or śiva-pravacana and Tattva-samāsa, ascribed to the sage Kapila, are now thought to belong to as late a date as the 14th or 15th century or perhaps a little later) &c. 73 &c.

It regards the whole universe as a development of an inanimate principle called Prakṛti q. v., while the Purusha is altogether passive and simply a looker-on. It agrees with the Vedānta in being synthetical and so differs from the analytical Nyāya or Vaiśeṣika; but its great point of divergence from the Vedānta is that it maintains two principles which the Vedānta denies, and that it does not admit God as the creator and controller of the universe, which the Vedānta affirms); sāṃkhyamiva kapilādhiṣṭhitam K. --khyah
